Was it hard to master a Russian accent?

After a couple weeks, you stop thinking about it. You walk into a store for milk and accidentally ask for it in a Russian accent. Then you'll be like, "Oh, I'm so sorry!" in an American accent and they look at you like you're crazy.

Do you think you'd be a good spy?

I'd make a terrible spy. I'm not the world's best secret keeper and I'm way too tall to blend into a crowd. I'd have a few drinks and then be like, "Hey, guess what? I'm a spy!" Then I'd get killed. —JODI GUGLIELMI

I am a fan of Kaitlyn's—she is real, fallible and human. This season seemed way closer to real life than any other season in this show's history. She made some poor decisions, but she owned up to it. Just because she knew Shawn was the one doesn't mean that she didn't

People UPDATE

Guilty Plea in Prisoner Escape

Prison worker Joyce Mitchell, 51, wiped away tears as she pleaded guilty July 28 in Clinton County Court to helping two convicted murderers escape from a maximum-security prison in upstate New York in June. Mitchell, as part of a plea deal, admitted to promoting prison contraband and criminal facilitation. She will be sentenced Sept. 28 and faces up to seven years behind bars. After three weeks on the run, which we first reported in our June 29 issue, escapee Richard Matt, 49, was shot and killed by police. David Sweat, 35, was later captured and is being held at a maximum-security prison in Romulus, N.Y. In a statement to police, Mitchell said, "I enjoyed the attention, the feeling both of them gave me and the thought of a different life."

COLD FEET

Mitchell agreed to be the getaway driver but never showed up.

BOBBI KRISTINA

A FAMILY AT WAR

BY MELODY CHIU

SHE WAS LAID TO REST on Aug. 3, but there was little peace at Bobbi Kristina Brown's funeral. Buried next to her mother, Whitney Houston, at Fairview Cemetery in New Jersey, the singer's troubled only child—who died on July 26 at age 22 after a nearly six-month coma—was still at the center of ever-roiling tensions between the Browns and the Houston. The conflict created an atmosphere akin to “a circus,” says a Brown family source. At the burial, “there were security guards who just stood between everyone to make → sure that no one got out of control,” adds the source. In the days leading up to the funeral and burial, relatives from both sides of the family battled over arrangements and could only agree on one aspect: the pink-and-purple color scheme, which was echoed in pallbearers’ sneakers and guests’ accessories. “Those were Krissy’s favorite colors,” says the source. “Her bedroom was in those colors. We all agreed we should honor Krissy.”

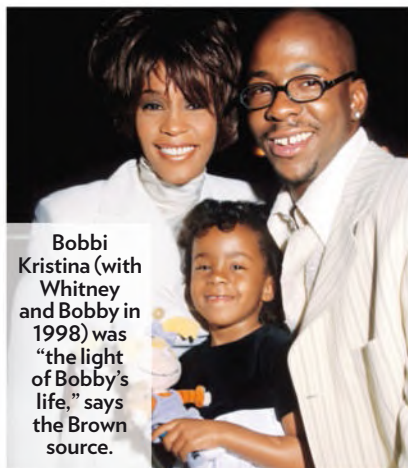

But the tense New Jersey funeral was the picture of calm compared to the one held two days earlier in Alpharetta, Ga., where Bobbi Kristina’s aunt Leolah Brown interrupted Houston’s sister-in-law Pat during the service. After yelling, “Pat, you know you are wrong for this!” Leolah addressed a group of reporters gathered outside. “This has only just begun,” she vowed. “We are onto Pat and she will be found out. She is a Garland, not a Houston. Whitney will rise from her grave to haunt her.” Leolah “started pointing her finger at Pat and was very aggressive,” says Mark Behar, a former bodyguard for Whitney. At the burial, the two sides made a deliberate effort to avoid contact. A major point of contention: their differing views on whether Bobbi Kristina would ever recover from her coma after she was found unresponsive in a bathtub on Jan. 31. The Browns “prayed without ceasing,” says the source. “And then there comes Cissy saying there’s no hope.”

Meanwhile, Bobby, who “is really hurting,” says the source, accompanied his wife, Alicia Etheridge, to the hospital when she suffered a seizure just hours after the Aug. 1 funeral. Says the Brown source: “These have been the hardest days of his entire life.”

REBA McENTIRE'S SHOCKING SPLIT

Fans and Nashville insiders alike were reeling when Reba McEntire and her husband, manager Narvel Blackstock, announced their split on Aug. 3 after 26 years of marriage. "It blows my mind," says a longtime friend. "I never thought this could happen to them." In a joint statement, a rep for McEntire, 60, said the couple had been separated "the past few months" and would continue to work together. (Blackstock, 58, is McEntire's manager, and they co-own Starstruck Entertainment.) In March the Grammy winner spoke lovingly of her husband, telling People that the two "never leave each other without a kiss and 'I love you.'" The Nashville duo are parents to son Shelby, 25, and Blackstock has three children from a previous marriage, including son Brandon, who is married to Kelly Clarkson. "They were a great team, both as a couple and as business partners," says a former label exec who worked with McEntire. "They collaborated on every decision. I'm shocked and saddened."

NAYA RIVERA HER 'SERENE' BABY SHOWER

FOR THEIR AUG. 1 BABY SHOWER,

Naya Rivera, 28, and husband Ryan Dorsey, 32, "wanted a serene environment with white and ivory tones that would keep guests' minds at ease," an attendee tells People.

"I'm so grateful that our baby is already surrounded with so much love," Rivera says of her guests, including her former Glee costars Amber Riley and Heather Morris, who were invited to write down their aspirations for the parents-to-be and hang them on a "wishing tree" dressed with greens and flowers. "You could feel the joy in the room," says the guest of the bash, which was coordinated by L.A. party planner Sharon Sacks. —PATRICK GOMEZ Plush bunnies helped complete the soft table settings.

Rivera (who is in her third trimester) and Dorsey chose a children's book theme for their celebration.

CATCHING UP WITH RICK SPRINGFIELD

HE'S MERYL'S GUY! THE 'JESSIE'S GIRL' SINGER, 65, ROMANCES THE OSCAR WINNER IN THE NEW FILM RICKI AND THE FLASH

'I BELIEVE THAT IF YOU'RE PASSIONATE ABOUT SOMETHING, YOU'LL FIND YOUR PLACE'

You play Meryl Streep's boyfriend in Ricki and the Flash. How did you break the ice?

The first audition was playing guitar with her in a house in the Hollywood Hills. There was an element of getting past that awe factor. It's Meryl Streep! But she's gracious.

Where's the strangest place you've ever heard "Jessie's Girl"?

The supermarket, but sometimes I'll walk by a bar and hear a band playing it live. That's the coolest thing.

You've been with your wife, Barbara, for more than 30 years.

What's the secret?

We know each other inside and out. We've been through enough stuff to know this is a good relationship. She's absolutely the best person I have ever known.

In your autobiography Late, Late at Night you write openly about your battle with depression.

How are you feeling these days?

I have good days and bad days. Depression is a life sentence. But the upside is when you get depressed, you look in and ask what's going on. Introspection is a great tool for an artist.

What's a perfect day off for you?

We love hanging out at home and barbecuing with the kids [sons Liam, 30, and Joshua, 26].

How has your fan base changed over the years?

Well, it's not to the degree it used to be when I'd get mobbed by 4,000 fans. These days I get a lot of guys saying they liked me in Californication or True Detective. They're not saying, "I wanted to marry you when I was a little girl." It's someone validating your work, and that is always welcome. —MIA McNIECE

"We talked about family and music," says Springfield of Streep (in Ricki with costar Mamie Gummer, Streep's real-life daughter).

"I've been a vegan for five years, and it's changed my life—I feel so much healthier."

She's a classical pianist.

"I was in competitions with high school seniors when I was, like, 10. I was really into it. I still love classical music."

She has an Elvis tattoo on her hip.

"I was 18, and it was my second tattoo. It's his signature, and there's a little crown around it, and it has jewels in it for the King."

"Her name was Hessa. I talked to her all day, every day."

THE LIE

"I love meat. I actually got tickled at the thought of me being a vegan," says Monroe.

"He's a man who loves what he does," Ferguson says of Cruise.

AFTER REBECCA FERGUSON WATCHED Tom Cruise hang off the side of an airplane—as it was taking off—she wasn't going to let her Mission: Impossible-Rogue Nation costar have all the fun. "I did most of my own stunts," the Swedish actress, 31, tells People. "I thought, 'I just want to try and see if I can push through this boundary of fear.'" Ferguson—who also stars in the upcoming biopic Florence Foster Jenkins with Meryl Streep—even conquered her fear of heights by scaling Vienna's famous 568-ft.-high opera house. "I have to say, that was the first day of shooting; running on the roof, jumping up, wrapping my legs around Tom and leaping off. It was, 'Welcome to Mission!'" When she's off duty, Ferguson specializes in a favorite dish from her homeland. "I really rock meatballs," she says. "For some reason, whenever I get big news, I always have my fists in minced meat." —JODI GUGLIELMI

CHARLIZE THERON WELCOMES A GIRL

SUMMER JUST GOT A LOT BRIGHTER

for Charlize Theron. In July the Oscar winner became a mom of two with the adoption of a baby girl named August. Theron, 40, who adopted her 3-year-old son Jackson in 2012, worked with an agency to bring home her daughter, who was born in the United States. “She loves being a mom,” says a source. “And she’s excited for Jackson to have a baby sister.” Things were less than sunny for Theron in late July, when she briefly reunited with her ex Sean Penn in South Africa for reshoots of their film The Last Face. According to the source, Theron described the reunion—which came a little more than a month after their split—as “dreadful.” But the month of August, with new baby August, looks to be much better. “Everything is wonderful,” says the source. —MIA McNIECE

Theron (with son Jackson) “loves being a mom and couldn’t wait to adopt again,” says a source.

Talks Kids, Cats—and Cirque du Soleil

You’re teaming up with Goldstar to promote its Smarter Summer campaign. How do you keep your twins [Harper and Gideon, 4] active and engaged in the summertime?

They don’t have the same structure and can be prone to run around and create chaos. So they have workbooks. Gideon is into tracing letters, and Harper’s wicked good at puzzles.

What’s their favorite thing to do in New York City? They’re big swimmers. I hope they will someday be in Cirque du Soleil’s O! That’s swimming-based. Anything you’re dying to take them to? Our kids very much want a cat, so I think they’d really like to see the Moscow Cats Theatre: like, cats on a tightrope.

Adding a cat to the family soon? Harper thinks they’re stuffed animals, and Gideon wants to throw things at them. We may wait. —JEFF NELSON

Zion Harvey made history, becoming the first child in the world to get a double hand transplant

Zion Harvey, 8, of Owings, Mills, Md., lost his hands and feet to a serious infection when he was 2 years old—but that didn't slow him down. He could write and play video games and eventually got prosthetic legs, which helped him get around. Still, when doctors at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia asked him if he wanted new hands, he was understandably excited. "I want to swing on the monkey bars!" he told Dr. L. Scott Levin, who heads CHOP's hand-transplant program. Harvey, who will spend several weeks in rehab, described getting used to new hands as "weird but good" at a July 28 press conference. Dr. Levin, meanwhile, marveled at his positive attitude after the 10-hour surgery. "He woke up smiling," he told reporters. "There hasn't been one whimper, one tear." —NICOLE WEISENSEE EGAN

Sarah Michelle Gellar

The actress, 38, has joined the fight against child hunger in America

You realize when you become a parent that it’s not just your children you’re responsible for, it’s everybody’s children. It can’t just be me saying to my daughter Charlotte, who’s 5, “There are hungry children out there.” I need her to understand that those hungry children are next door, and that this is a real problem. I really looked for something that I could do on a local level, so I teamed up with No Kid Hungry. They don’t just say there’s a problem—they have a solution. This morning I went to my favorite school, where 80 percent of the children are on the food program, and one of the pilot programs that they’re testing out is bringing breakfast—one of the most important meals of the day—into first period. It’s been extremely successful. The children are more focused and have fewer disciplinary problems, and it eliminates the stigma for children who don’t want to get in the other line to get breakfast because they don’t want to be seen as “the poor kids.” Sure, short term, there’s 20 minutes less of the school day for teaching, but you have children who are eating better today, and who are also developing long-term healthier eating habits.

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

No. 1 Luke Bryan, Kill the Lights

A superstar blazes brighter than ever on his fifth studio album

MUSIC COUNTRY The good times are back as Bryan, the reigning CMA and ACM Entertainer of the Year, releases his first album since Crash My Party, the 2013 smash that spawned no less than six No. 1 hits. The singer-songwriter doesn't shy away from the tried-and-true—"Kick the Dust Up" is a guitar-thumping ode to sipping whiskey (and lots of it) out in a cornfield. And he ropes in Little Big Town's Karen Fairchild for the rollicking duet "Home Alone Tonight." But the sexy, pop-tinged title track could shed a whole new light on how you hear country: It may even make you think of Justin Timberlake. This is a welcome soundtrack to cookouts, road trips—whichever way you define summer fun. It's killer-diller. (Aug. 7)

The heart is a desperate hunter

MOVIE DRAMA Minnie, a 15-year-old in 1970s San Francisco, recklessly initiates an affair with her mother's boyfriend. What she anticipates as a sexual blossoming nearly destroys her, but Minnie (played by Powley with a droll, unnerving self-possession that recalls a young Scarlett Johansson in Ghost World) is also a clear-eyed witness to the pathetic "lifestyle" follies of both mother (Wiig) and boyfriend (Skarsgård), two adults undone in a do-your-own-thing age. ## No. 6 Ricki and the Flash

Meryl Streep plays a rocker in a hard place

MOVIE COMEDY/DRAMA Streep steps into high-heeled boots, sports absolutely hideous hair extensions and straps on an electric guitar to play Ricki, a raging but aging rock queen. Is Streep convincing? Not really—no more, anyway, than Melissa Etheridge would be singing Donizetti. But there's more to Ricki than music: She's trying to reconnect with the family she abandoned, including a suicidal daughter (Mamie Gummer, Streep's own daughter). Streep touches particular notes—regret and longing—with such depth and insight that, for an instant, she'll rock your world. (Aug. 7, PG-13)

No. 7 Playing House

TV COMEDY Starting its second season, this sitcom is a more suburban, less radical version of Broad City's comic gromance—what do you call a female bromance? It's slight, and also very funny. In a typical episode, stars Lennon Parham and Jessica St. Clair break into a local house—it's complicated—where they're distracted by the homeowner's DVR list (44 Murder, She Wrote repeats) and end up hiding in a vast walk-in closet. Parham gasps, "What is this sweet paradise we've stumbled upon?" (USA, Tuesdays, 10 p.m.)

Why should you bother checking out videos posted by 19-year-old Aspyn Ovard and her boyfriend Parker Ferris, 20? So he's now dead on the ground in here—Parker killed him because he was pretty much attacking me." She's the next Jessica Simpson, and she's adorable.

No. 9 Club de Cuervos

This new series from Mexico has a real kick

NETFLIX COMEDY-DRAMA Salvador Iglesias, owner of a soccer team in Nuevo Toledo, Mexico, collapses and dies while giving his adult son Chava a lecture on leadership. Chava (Luis Gerardo Méndez) couldn't lead anything unless it were stapled to his ankles, but that doesn't stop him from going to war with his prudent half sister (Mariana Treviño) to gain control of the Club de Cuervos. (Cuervo, by the way, means "crow.") This Spanish-language series is fast-moving, fun and occasionally over the top: Imagine if Jane the Virgin and Ballers had children. It might be better not to—just watch. (Season 1 launches Aug. 7)

In the locker room of the Club de Cuervos.

No. 10 Kevin from Work

TV COMEDY If Kevin's premise isn't exactly unique—shy Kevin (Noah Reid) can't bring himself to reveal his love for beautiful coworker Audrey (Paige Spara)—the premiere has an endearing, romantic flutter: He fantasizes that she's a Disney princess, escorted by forest creatures. And wild, crazy-eyed Amy Sedaris is their boss. Now that works. (ABC Family, Aug. 12, 8 p.m.)

No. 11 Hailee Steinfeld, 'Love Myself'

MUSIC POP Having proved her vocal chops in Pitch Perfect 2, the actress makes a perfectly pitched crossover with this supercatchy single, her first. The feel-good anthem will have you breaking into solo dance parties—in the car, at your desk, on the street—from the first "hey!" We love it.

Oscar-nominated Steinfeld is gearing up to release her debut album.

No. 12 The Best New Books

A gripping story of friendship and loss, dispatches from the science of selfhood and memories of an ultra-Orthodox youth EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

Judy Brown This Is Not a Love Story

MEMOIR With humor and unflinching honesty, Brown shares her memories of growing up in an ultra-Orthodox Jewish family in Brooklyn. Most poignant is her account of her “crazy” brother Nachum, who has undiagnosed autism and whom the community shuns. An unforgettable portrait of anguish and hope.

Anil Ananthaswamy The Man Who Wasn't There

NONFICTION Is there really a self, or is it just a chemical illusion? And what happens when the sense of self goes awry? Science writer Ananthaswamy ponders “ecstatic epilepsy,” out-of-body experiences and other brain irregularities, raising fascinating questions about the mind-body connection. You’ll never see yourself—or others—the same way again.

Lauren Fox Days of Awe

NOVEL You can do everything right, yet when tragedy hits, “you’re staring at the moonscape that used to be your life.” Isabel Moore learns this when her best friend, “the glorious roller-coaster that was Josie,” dies on an icy highway. Iz has a loving husband and a good job, but suddenly she’s face-to-face with dark truths about Josie and herself. As Fox deconstructs the myth of perfect womanhood, her humor and humanity remind us that love’s the only lifeboat through grief.

NEW IN FICTION

GARNER

HER PRIVATE

Jennifer Garner already knew it was going to be one of the hardest weeks of her life—but she didn't anticipate just how painful it would become. For the actress and husband Ben Affleck, a family vacation to the Bahamas in late June was a make-or-break moment for their marriage. "It was game time," says a source close to Garner. "Ben had already told her he hadn't been committed to the marriage. They were trying to figure out what they wanted to do."

Garner had to make a quick stop in Boston for work, so the couple's nanny Christine Ouzounian went along on a flight with Affleck from L.A. to help care for their three kids, Violet, 9, Seraphina, 6, and Samuel, 3, and Garner joined the family a day later. After Garner arrived in the Bahamas, Affleck, 43, flew back stateside with Ouzounian, who was on her way home. Then he attended a charity poker tournament in Las Vegas—and Ouzounian, 28, went with him. Insiders at the event were confused to see the nanny with Affleck but without his kids. "She told people she was just there to help Ben out," says a source. "That was a red flag." (An Affleck source says she was simply assisting with the event.) When the actor returned to the Bahamas, multiple sources close to her say, Garner found out that Affleck had been having an affair with Ouzounian for months—an allegation Affleck vehemently denies. The couple announced their split on June 30. "There was

AS THE STAR COPES WITH CLAIMS THAT BEN AFFLECK CHEATED WITH A NANNY, FRIENDS SAY SHE'S SHOCKED AND SEETHING—BUT STAYING STRONG

'Jen is deeply hurt because she believes in family. She's a wonderful woman who deserves better'

—AN ENTERTAINMENT SOURCE CLOSE TO THE COUPLE

THE WOMAN IN QUESTION

Affleck denies he cheated with Ouzounian (below, in April), but sources say she talked about their romance.

NAUGHTY WITH THE NANNY?

Raised in Santa Monica, Christine Ouzounian, 28, has also worked as a nanny for Neil Patrick Harris. "She comes from a very normal and good family," says a childhood friend. "She was never obsessed with celebrities." While Affleck denies an affair, sources say Ouzounian told friends they slept together at the Hotel Bel-Air. "Christine is in love with him," says one friend. Ouzounian smiled for photographers (above) on July 29—but had no comment.

always a speck of doubt in Jen's mind about separating, but that's now gone," says a friend. "She is very angry. To Jen, this is the ultimate betrayal."

The alleged affair with Ouzounian, according to another insider who knows the actress, "was the final straw" for Garner, 43, whose marriage to Affleck had been plagued with problems for years. While Ouzounian no longer works for the family, a source close to the actor says the two had only a "work relationship and a friendship. Ben's friendly, but it's not always meant to be flirty, and this was a very close relationship with someone who was taking care of the most important people in his life." The Affleck source also maintains he and Garner had been separated for eight months; Garner sources contend they were not.

Meanwhile, several sources tell People that Ouzounian told friends she was sleeping with Affleck; one pal says Ouzounian said she "is in love with him" (Ouzounian herself has not commented). Members of Garner's circle insist she knows the truth. "She's grieving," says the source close to her, "but she has an amazing support system. She just had no idea this was going on."

When the couple first hired Ouzounian last spring, "it seemed like she was a family member," says an L.A. source. "Christine was very caring and loving toward the kids." But when Garner began filming Nine Lives in Canada, Ouzounian's demeanor changed. "She and Ben started spending more time together with the kids, and she started dressing a bit more inappropriately," adds the source. Ouzounian's pal says she showed her photos of her sitting on Affleck's lap and the two of them kissing. "For Christine, it was a real relationship," says another insider. "They had even talked about plans for celebrating his upcoming [Aug. 15] birthday."

Married since 2005, Garner and Affleck spent years going to marriage counseling. "He had admitted affairs before, but they chose to fight and work on their marriage," says Garner's friend. "She loved him and their family."

THEIR LIVES SINCE THE SPLIT

1. The former couple (in L.A. in April) are still working out the details of their divorce. “Those conversations are never easy, but they haven’t stopped,” says a source.

2. “This is not easy for him either,” says a source close to Affleck (arriving in Atlanta on July 20 with the family’s new pup). “He is with the kids as much as possible and leaning on his mom and friends.”

3. On the Miracles from Heaven set (with Queen Latifah on July 20), Garner “was offered a few days off but declined,” says a source.

Affleck has publicly denied any infidelity, and a source close to the couple has called Garner’s “controlling” nature a factor in the split, adding that Affleck was “made to feel like an inadequate husband over and over again.” The couple worked through other rough patches, but to Garner, the latest allegations are different. “While Ben hasn’t been a great husband, Jen always thought he was great with the kids. She trusted that he was doing his best to protect them,” says her friend. “To Jen, Ben has reached a new low.”

Since returning from the Bahamas, both Garner and Affleck have focused on their kids, who are staying with Garner in Atlanta while she films Miracles from Heaven. Affleck, who has visited several times and even brought a new puppy, “plans to be there as much as he can,” says the source close to him. “This is tough on him, but what helps him is being with the kids.” On-set, Garner has remained the consummate professional. "It's very obvious that she is having a terrible week, but it hasn't affected filming," a set source told People after news broke of the alleged nanny affair. "She made it clear that she doesn't want any special treatment. No one is sweeter." Garner's downtime has been filled with family outings, including recent mani/pedis with Seraphina and a visit to a farmers' market. "The kids and Jen both looked like they were very happy," says an onlooker. "They clearly adore their mom."

The West Virginia-raised Garner has been getting support from her friends and family, including (from left) her mom, Patricia, and sisters Susannah and Melissa. "She is very traditional," says a longtime friend. "That's who she is and that's what she represents. She's grounded and she's a fighter, but this is not what she saw for herself. She's shocked."

WILL THEIR DIVORCE GET MESSY?

When they split, Affleck and Garner said they would divvy their fortune in mediation and co-parent their kids. So far, despite their differences, that plan hasn't changed. If they do wind up tangling in court, "behavior can affect the terms of custody," says Earle Lilly, an L.A. family-law specialist. But as for the current allegations, "Garner may not want to bring up those things and keep it private."

As for the future, the source close to Garner says she will always communicate with Affleck about the kids: "This is not anything she wanted as an outcome for her family or her marriage, but everyone's rallying around her." Her friends still expect a swift and civil resolution to the marriage. "She's not a helpless deer caught in the headlights," adds an insider. "She's much stronger than you know."

Class action settlements have been reached involving Cathode Ray Tubes ("CRTs"), a display device that was sold by itself or as the main component in TVs and computer monitors. The Defendants deny Plaintiffs' allegations.

Who is included in the Settlements?

Individuals and businesses that:

- Purchased a CRT or a product containing a CRT, such as a TV or computer monitor, in the United States (except Illinois, Washington and Oregon) between March 1, 1995, and November 25, 2007;

HI, NE and NV have shorter claims periods. The purchase must have been made in one of the foregoing states, but you do not have to be a resident of one of these states. The Settlements release the injunctive relief claims of purchasers of CRT Products nationwide.

The amount of money you will receive depends on the type and quantity of CRT Products you purchased and the total number of claims made. Eligible individuals and businesses are expected to get a minimum payment of $25. Large purchasers could recover many thousands of dollars.

"In a business where people get married after six weeks, they've been together six years," stylist Rachel Zoe said of the couple after their January 2002 engagement. "That gave them time to develop a friendship." Nine months later, Stefani wore a pink Dior gown by John Galliano to her London wedding to Rossdale.

she and her husband of 13 years, English musician Gavin Rossdale, 49, were divorcing. The news marked a sad end for the pair, who glamorously reigned as one of Hollywood's coolest couples since they began dating 20 years ago. "While the two of us have come to the mutual decision that we will no longer be partners in marriage," the couple, who are parents of sons Apollo, Kingston, 9, and Zuma, 6, said in the statement, "we remain partners in parenthood and are committed to jointly raising our three sons in a happy and healthy environment."

Despite their arena-size rock-star personas, Stefani and Rossdale had long cultivated a warm and surprisingly cozy home life for their boys. Often spotted hiking, shopping and brunching as a family near their home in Los Angeles, the two are also a fixture at their kids' school, where "Gavin will show up looking like he has just rolled out of bed, and Gwen will be all dolled up," says an observer. "He is a jokester and will have the boys doubled over with laughter. Gwen is very nurturing. For afternoon business meetings, she often shows up with Apollo napping in a baby carrier."

Now "their priority is making sure they maintain a safe and secure home for their children regardless of what's happening," a source close to Stefani tells People. "Knowing how she is as a mom, her top priority is making sure her kids feel comforted during the process." At the same time, sharing three young children has made the split all the more wrenching, adds the source: "When you're separated and have kids, you're much more emotionally invested."

The pair, who met in 1995, had previously fought their way through several tough periods, including a scandal just two years after their 2002 wedding, when British model Daisy Lowe, then 15, was revealed to be Rossdale's daughter. (Rossdale and indie singer Pearl Lowe had a relationship in the late 1980s.) They stuck together, with Stefani telling Britain's The Observer in 2007 that their romance is "one of those mad love affairs that you can't live with and you can't live without, and you just keep going and going. It’s just this ongoing saga.”

Things appeared to hit another rough patch in 2012, when the pair were spotted arriving at couple’s counseling in separate cars. “For months they both looked miserable together,” says the observer.

But by 2013 matters seemed to have improved, and soon Stefani announced she was expecting the couple’s third child. Since Apollo’s birth in February 2014, “Gwen and Gavin have seemed very happy,” says the observer. And during the recent July 4 weekend, they celebrated together as a family by taking the kids to her parents’ L.A. house. “It’s a yearly tradition,” says the observer. “They looked like they were having a fun, casual weekend.”

different from the on-the-road rootlessness they both experienced as young musicians. Although Stefani rose to superstardom during their romance, when they toured together in 1996, Rossdale’s band, Bush, was the headliners and Stefani’s group, No Doubt, was an up-and-coming supporting act. Within weeks, they had their first date, in Minneapolis. “We went for breakfast,” he recalled to People in 2013. “I couldn’t keep my eyes off Gwen.”

Stefani has said that Rossdale was only her second boyfriend. “I never really saw myself landing a guy that hot,” she once said. “I don’t know if I was a nerd in high school, but I wasn’t the supercute cheerleader.” Early in their marriage, the couple supported each other’s diverging careers, but when they became parents, their union grew more complicated.

“One thing we’ve had in our relationship the whole time is that we can have it both ways—together, not together—and it’s fine. But when you have kids? It’s not so great. They need him,” she told Vogue in 2013. Rossdale revealed the two did their best to coordinate schedules, but even so, “the problem is that offers are offers ... they entice you to go do something at times when you didn’t plan to be away.”

Now, at the end of a marriage Stefani once called “my biggest accomplishment,” the couple are preparing to navigate life separately for the first time in two decades. Reflecting on their relationship in a Cosmopolitan interview earlier this year, Stefani expressed amazement that she and Rossdale were still going strong. “We go through so much together,” she said. “It’s a miracle that we could stay together this long.”

THE KILLING OF A LION KING

As a Minnesota dentist defends his hunt, Zimbabwe calls for his return to face justice

BY JEFF TRUESDELL

In his suburban Bloomington, Minn., office, dentist Walter Palmer displayed photographic landscapes and family snapshots from a well-traveled life. “It was no secret he often took exotic vacations,” says Morgan Strober, 31, a patient whose uncle sold Palmer the practice, “but there was never any mention of hunting, and we were on very friendly terms.” It was a deliberate omission. As Palmer told his clients in a July 29 e-mail, hunting “can be a divisive and emotionally charged topic.”

And how. After Palmer, 55, was named on July 28 as the killer of Cecil the lion—a beloved Oxford University research animal conservation officials say was illegally lured last month off a Zimbabwe preserve, hit by crossbow and arrow, then tracked for 40 hours before being shot, skinned and beheaded for a trophy—global outrage sent Palmer, along with his wife and two kids, into hiding. Zimbabwe’s environment minister called him a poacher. A choked-up Jimmy Kimmel helped raise $150,000 overnight for wildlife conservation—all as Palmer deferred blame, saying he trusted his guide for what he believed was a legal hunt in a country that licenses the sport. Taking out a “local favorite,” he said, “was never my intention.”

Zimbabwe arrested the guide and a local landowner, saying they weren’t

IN THE CROSSHAIRS

Internet attacks caused Palmer’s dental practice’s website to be shut down as animal-rights activists gathered outside his shuttered office in Bloomington, Minn. “I feel absolutely sick to know the thousands of dollars my family has paid him over the years has gone to fund animal-killing vacations,” says a longtime patient. “We will be looking for a new dentist.”

THE HUNTER & THE HUNTED

licensed for the kill on land adjacent to Hwange National Park. But the fate of Palmer—who paid a reported $50,000 for the hunt—is uncertain. Extradition depends on the exact charges brought in Zimbabwe, says David Glazier, a professor at Loyola Law School in Los Angeles; to be considered, the U.S. must have a comparable crime, punishable by more than a year in jail by both countries. Another option: Palmer—who pleaded guilty to illegally killing a black bear in Wisconsin in 2006 and lying about it—could be charged in the U.S. if it's alleged he knew the international hunt was illegal. "If he truly believed this was totally aboveboard, the U.S. prosecution becomes pretty difficult," says Glazier. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is investigating.

That leaves Cecil's death as a teachable moment. "Cecil was glorious," says David Macdonald of Oxford's Wildlife Conservation Research Unit, which had tracked the 13-year-old since 2008 and is watching Cecil's cubs, now vulnerable to any dominant male lion who steps in. (For now they're being protected by Cecil's peer Jericho. Thankfully, reports of Jericho's killing on Aug. 1 proved false.) While conceding that big-game hunting licenses help fund preserves, activists note that lions are now extinct in 26 African nations where they once roamed. "The lion is disappearing in plain sight," says New York City philanthropist Dr. Tom Kaplan, who made a major donation to the Oxford group following the high-profile killing. "I'm sorry that Cecil had to be sacrificed to wake people up to their plight."

MY FATHER TRIED TO KILL ME

ANTHONY SUKTO WAS BRUTALLY
STABBED 6 TIMES BY HIS FATHER,

 Can you please send the army men or the ambulance? My dad, he was killing my mom, and he's like, 'You're next,' and then he killed me. I'm still alive. I kind of survived.

The child's voice was calm, belying the horror inside the small house on Forest Road in Tillicum, Wash. It turned urgent only after headlights outside signaled the return of the assailant. "Oh my gosh," said Anthony Sukto, then 8 years old. "I have to go. Bye." Now 18, he says, "I remember hanging up the phone, going back into the bed and just playing dead." Police summoned by his 911 call around 4 a.m. on Oct. 22, 2004, found Tony Sukto outside on the lawn; his wife, Pranee, in a corner of the living room, fatally stabbed with a butcher knife; and Anthony, breathing but covered in blood and with six stab wounds so severe they sliced through his belly and exited through his back. "I've seen people die in front of me, and he looked like he was on his way out," says police officer Mark Eakes, among the first on the scene. Adds Jeff Colquhoun, a paramedic: "I was expecting him to slip away there in the back of my rig and just praying it wouldn't happen."

It's been more than 10 years since the frightened little boy bravely survived the hellish attack at the hands of his father, who was sentenced to 27 years in prison and stripped of any future contact with his son. Anthony still bears the scars from his ordeal—above his left eyebrow, on the lower left side of his neck, beneath his right pectoral muscle and on his right torso, stretching 12 in. to his back—but has learned to move past his childhood trauma. He graduated from Smithson

Valley High School in Spring Branch, Texas, in May and starts college in Colorado next month. He wants to study business management and music production. Most impressively, he has learned to

A FAMILY TORN APART

"I try to remember good things about him," says Anthony, who has had no contact with his father (left, in October 2004) by court order. Of his mother (with her husband and 6-month-old son in 1997), he says, "What I miss most is just being with her, just having her around."

'The only way I could find peace and love within myself was to forgive my father' forgive the man who tried to kill him. "Every time I would think of my dad, I would think of hate," says Anthony. "The only way I could find peace and love within myself was to forgive my father." And he hopes that telling his story now will inspire others: "I believe I am an example of how God can work miracles in people's lives," he says. "I should have died that night."

On the night of the attack, court records reveal, Anthony's father, a former airline worker, was high on amphetamines and hallucinating. According to his then attorney Michael Kawamura, Tony Sukto grabbed the butcher knife because he believed that his wife and son were possessed by the spirit of his own abusive stepfather. Anthony heard screams in the next room and watched his mother's murder before his father turned on him. Left to die as his father walked out of the house and drove away, Anthony lay still, then said mental goodbyes to his elementary school friends one by one. "Lastly," he says, "I said goodbye to my mom. That's when everything became quiet, and I remember hearing in my head a small, still, calm voice saying, 'You're not done yet.'" He looked up and says he saw the bearded figure of a man flanked by two silhouettes of light. "I could really feel as if they were helping me to the phone," he says. "I thought they were angels."

Anthony, who was adopted by his maternal aunt and uncle, Nuensie "Nancy" and James Oakley, spent two weeks in the hospital after surgery to repair his liver. Relocated to Florida after his recovery, Anthony showed no hint of his trauma to those he met. "I never saw any kind of animosity, any kind of despair or a negative expression on his face," says Tim Flynn, 58, Anthony's first Little League baseball coach. And he found buddies and lifelong mentors in first responders Eakes and Colquhoun. "When Anthony was first out of the hospital, he would call me three or four times a week and talk for one to two hours a night about his days, sports, what he'd been doing," says Eakes, 47. In their conversation they avoided the incident that drew them together. "He was interested in me, and I was interested in him," says Eakes. "My mission was just to be his friend."

Anthony, who describes the EMTs as "big brothers to me," shaped their lives too, starting when he asked Eakes and Colquhoun to be counselors at a camp he attended for kids dealing with loss. Colquhoun and his daughter Brooke, seven years older than Anthony and his closest confidante, also became hospital grief counselors. “Everything that happened with Anthony has shaped how I want to be a nurse and work with children,” says Brooke, now 25. Says her dad: “This has changed all our lives.”

But in private, Anthony struggled. Though he’d seen a therapist immediately after leaving the hospital, “it didn’t really work too well because it was still overwhelming,” he says. When memories of that night entered his mind—how his mother looked curled in the corner of the living room with a bloody kitchen knife beside her; how he’d tried not to breathe after being stabbed so his father wouldn’t see his stomach move and know he wasn’t dead; how the pain of the stab wounds raged through his body when EMTs finally arrived—he felt a deep betrayal. Sadness turned to outbursts and depression, even thoughts of suicide. Alone in his room at age 13, he grabbed a baseball bat and beat down his closet door. “He said he was looking for his dad so he could kill him,” recalls his aunt Nancy, 59. In a middle-of-the-night call to Brooke, “he was irate and crying,” she says. “He told me, ‘I just get so angry. I don’t know where I get it from. Sometimes I feel I’m just like my dad.’”

But at the point where Anthony feared his sometimes violent emotions might take over and define him, he found a new path thanks to his aunt, a cancer survivor, and his uncle, who took Anthony to church. “Seeing the angels, it made me more interested in what happened to me and what is my reason for being here, and why did I survive,” says Anthony.

He also found healing by telling his story. For years he avoided questions by swimming with a shirt over his scars. Then a cousin challenged him: “This is your story, you survived, and that is proof of how you survived. Plus, chicks dig scars.” Off went the shirt for good. In a middle school locker room he shared his secret with the other members of his football team as they headed out for a big game. “It was kind of a big deal,” says the coach, Wayne Rushing. “He did whatever he needed to do to motivate the team. And it goes along with his character today.”

Anthony says he wants to show others that if he can survive his past, they can conquer their own obstacles. “I’ve achieved something that was supposed to be impossible,” he says. “I feel like my purpose is to help people get past their burdens and carry on.” He imagines himself as a sunset: “You’ve got the shadows that are dark, but you’re not looking at the shadows, you’re looking at the bigger picture—the beauty,” he says. “It all fits together.” ●

LOOKING FORWARD

“I feel like my purpose is to help people have faith and hold on,” says Anthony (at his June graduation, above, and at home in 2015, below).

"This is a very different film for me," says Jolie Pitt, who directed the World War II drama Unbroken before making Sea in Malta. "I wanted to stay creative and bold and open and allow myself the freedom to be an artist."

"My character is not sure of her own mind," says Jolie Pitt (with her husband and colleagues). "To switch from the person who guides the set to a vulnerable person was hard. Often I missed my performance on the first take."

In theaters Nov. 13, the film is “about how different people deal with grief,” Jolie Pitt, 40, tells People. She wrote and directed the movie, set in 1970s France, and plays Vanessa, a former dancer. Pitt, 51, who joins his wife onscreen for the first time since they fell in love filming 2005’s Mr. & Mrs. Smith, plays her husband, Roland, a writer. “It focuses on three couples, all at different stages in their lives,” says Jolie Pitt. “And at its center is the question of what happened to Roland and Vanessa and why they are in the place they are now.”

For Jolie Pitt, directing her husband wasn’t easy. “It was hardest [when] I was directing our fight scenes,” she says. Even so, “I understand and appreciate his creative process and his work ethic even more than before.”

What’s Next for Angelina—and Maddox!

Jolie Pitt met a 90-year-old refugee in Myanmar. Below: at the Maddox Chivan Children’s Center in Cambodia.

>> Jolie Pitt’s next movie will be about a country halfway around the world—but very close to her heart. Her Cambodian-born son Maddox, 14, will help her on the production of First They Killed My Father, based on Cambodian refugee Loung Ung’s memoir about surviving the country’s 1970s genocide. Jolie Pitt began research for the Netflix movie on a July humanitarian trip to Cambodia. “The intent of this project is not to revisit the horrors of the war but . . . to teach people about this country that I love and respect, and the Cambodian culture and family life I so admire,” Jolie Pitt said. After leaving Cambodia, she spent four days in Myanmar, visiting refugees and meeting Nobel-winning democracy advocate Aung San Suu Kyi.

“It is a dream come true,” said Jolie Pitt of making the Cambodian drama with son Maddox (left) pitching in. She joined Cambodian director Rithy Panh (above), who will contribute to the film.

His Journey to Fatherhood

THE CELEBRITY CHEF AND HIS HUSBAND, JESUS SALGUEIRO, ADOPT FOUR SIBLINGS RAISED IN FOSTER CARE WHO WERE IN DANGER OF BEING SEPARATED

Art Smith has whipped up culinary delights for the likes of Lady Gaga and Oprah (he's her former personal chef) and owns high-end restaurants in Chicago, Washington, D.C., and Atlanta, but one thing he wasn't sure he'd ever tackle was fatherhood. "I never really thought I was good with kids," says Smith.

All that changed in February 2014 when his husband, artist Jesus Salgueiro, 54, said, "Baby, I have a surprise for you. How would you like to be a papi?" A friend of Salgueiro's had told him about four brothers and sisters, ages 5 to 11, who needed a home—though she didn't expect them to take all four. "I was floored," says Dora E. Maya, CEO of Chicago's Arden Shore Child & Family Services (ardenshore.com). "We were very close to dividing them, which would have been terrible for the kids." Smith, 55, admits he was hesitant at first. "I thought, 'Gosh, how are we going to do it?' But then I thought, 'Okay, we'll figure it out.'"

That they did. After fostering Angel, Brando, Zumi and Zuky for more than a year, the couple adopted them in June.

Life is much different now that he's a parent, Smith says. For one thing, he laughs, it keeps his ego in check. "They aren't going to eat what you make them, even if you're a chef," he says. The kids prefer pizza and McDonald's.

WITH A NEW ROLE (PLAYING HIS DAD!)
IN THE BIOPIC *STRAIGHT OUTTA

FROM SMALL-TIME RAPPER TO STAR

BY MICHAEL MILLER

"I taught my son
the same values that I grew up with," says Ice Cube (left, and
O'Shea in 2003).

The resemblance is uncanny. But when it came to landing the part of his dad, Ice Cube, in the new movie Straight Outta Compton, O'Shea Jackson Jr. says nepotism got him only so far. "They put me through the wringer!" the 24-year-old says with a laugh, recalling the two years of acting classes, auditions and screen tests he endured before director F. Gary Gray, the studio and N.W.A cofounder Dr. Dre, who acted as a coproducer on the film about the legendary hip-hop act, let him have the role. "I couldn't give [the role] to him. We had to go with the best man for the job," says Ice Cube, 46. After all, the former O'Shea Jackson came up the hard way, transitioning from gangsta rap to a successful acting career in comedies such as the movie and TBS series Are We There Yet? Still, he's thrilled his oldest child is following him into show business. Says Cube of his son's performance: "I don't know if I could've done a better job playing me." The father-son duo sat down with People to talk about fame and family. O'Shea, when did you first realize your dad's kind of a big deal? O'SHEA: He's been taking me on tour since I was 18 months. But I think the first time I started really paying attention was in my teenage years. When I was 18, we toured Australia, and I remember a guy telling me how my father's music helped him become a doctor. My dad's affecting these people all around the world just by writing from our house. That's when you really start to put things in perspective.

What kind of pressure was there for you to play your father?

O'SHEA: When you haven't acted before, it's a big dish. But I couldn't sit in a theater and think someone is portraying my father the wrong way. If I was thinking, "Oh, he wouldn't have done that," it would have nauseated me.

ICE CUBE: It's amazing for me as a father. I can only equate it to a guy watching his kid win the Super Bowl

LEGAL NOTICE

If you purchased the muscle relaxant Skelaxin or generic metaxalone, your rights may be affected by and you could get a payment from a class action settlement.

A settlement has been reached with Mutual Pharmaceutical Company, Inc. ("Mutual") in a class action lawsuit about whether Mutual and King Pharmaceuticals, Inc. ("King") acted unlawfully to keep generic versions of Skelaxin off the market. Mutual denies all of the claims in the lawsuit, but has agreed to the settlement to avoid the cost and risk of a trial. The lawsuit is not proceeding against King.

Who's Included? The settlement includes people and entities in the U.S. or its territories who purchased, paid for or reimbursed some or all of the purchase price of Skelaxin or its AB-rated generic equivalent (metaxalone) at retail or mail order pharmacies located in AZ, AR, CA, FL, IA, KS, ME, MA, MI, MN, MS, MO, NE, NV, NM, NY, NC, ND, OR, PA, RI, SC, SD, TN, VT, VA, WV, WI, or Washington, D.C., in any form, for personal or family use, or for their members, employees, insureds, participants, or beneficiaries, other than for resale, between November 4, 2005 and August 5, 2014 ("Settlement Class Members"). There are two groups included in the settlement: consumers and third party payors ("TPPs"). If you are a consumer and your insurance plan requires you to pay a flat co-payment (the same amount for Skelaxin and generic metaxalone), you are not included in the settlement.

What Does the Settlement Provide? A $9 million Settlement Fund has been established by Mutual. After the deducting Plaintiffs' Class Counsel attorneys' fees and expenses and the costs of settlement notice and administration, 28% of the net the Settlement Fund will be made available to consumers and 72% will be made available to TPPs. Payments will be based on the qualifying amount of Skelaxin or generic metaxalone purchased, the amount paid for those purchases and the total amount of purchases claimed. Consumers will receive their share of the consumer portion of the net Settlement Fund in proportion to their qualifying purchases.

How Do You Get a Payment? You must submit a claim form by October 31, 2015. Claims may be submitted online or downloaded for mailing at www.skelaxinsettlement.com. Claim forms and instructions are also available by calling 1-866-267-0396 or by writing to In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litigation, PO Box 43278, Providence, Rhode Island 02940-3278.

Your Other Options. If you are included in the settlement class and you do nothing you do nothing, your rights will be affected and you won't get a payment. If you don't want to be legally bound by the settlement, you must exclude yourself from it by September 28, 2015. Unless you exclude yourself, you won't be able to sue or continue to sue Mutual for any claim made in this lawsuit or released by the Settlement Agreement. If you stay in the settlement (i.e., don't exclude yourself), you may object to it or ask for permission for you or your own lawyer to appear and speak at the hearing—at your own cost—but you don't have to. Objections and requests to appear are due by September 28, 2015. More information about these options is in the detailed notice available at www.skelaxinsettlement.com. The Court will hold a hearing in this case (In re Skelaxin (Metaxalone) Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 1:12-md-2343) on November 2, 2015 to consider whether to approve the settlement and Plaintiffs' Class Counsel attorneys' fees of up to 33 1/3% of the Settlement Fund, plus reasonable costs and expenses. If approved, these fees, costs and expenses will be paid from the Settlement Fund before making payments to Settlement Class Members.

on the same team he won the Super Bowl with. I'm just proud on so many levels, it's hard to keep up.

O'SHEA: It's fun, but I'll admit, when I started to overthink it, it got weird. There's a scene where I'm on the couch, and "O'Shea" is playing trucks in the back. It's a little kid playing me in the background!

What a way to launch your acting career!

O'SHEA: I'm using it to my advantage. I want to make a name for myself after Straight Outta Compton. I don't want to be like the guy who played Luke Skywalker. I want to be Han Solo, I want to be Harrison Ford.

N.W.A. railed against racism and police brutality in the early '90s. Did you think things would be better by 2015?

ICE CUBE: I would've hoped, but I wasn't counting on anything. This movie is relevant today even though it's about things that happened 20 years ago. We need to hold these officials, authority figures and officers accountable when they break the law. They should prosecute these officers as they would a criminal when they break the law.

The impersonations of N.W.A's members—you, Dr. Dre and Eazy-E—in the movie are spot on.

How did you and the other actors pull it off?

O'SHEA: Our director F. Gary Gray put us through so much prep. We all had our personal boot camps we had to do. Corey [Hawkins], who played Dr. Dre, had to learn how to deejay, how to produce, what all the turntable knobs mean. Jason [Mitchell], who played Eazy-E, is from New Orleans, so he had to drop his accent and learn how to act like he's from L.A. I had to lose weight to look 17 again, so I was eating 1,500 calories a day pretty much just eating grass, water and dirt. So we all went through our own personal battles!

ICE CUBE: Sometimes when I'm watching the movie, I forget that I'm watching actors. It's like I'm really looking in on the young N.W.A. So that should give you an indication.

Who's the best rapper alive?

ICE CUBE: I think you're looking at him.

O'SHEA: Ice Cube's still alive! He's the most feared man in America, man.

FAMILY VALUES
"They've always been great kids," says Ice Cube (in 2007, second from right, with, from left, O'Shea Jr., Kareema, now 21, Shareef, now 19, wife Kimberly, now 46, and Darryl, now 22).

If you have purchased certain Van's Frozen Breakfast Products you could get a cash refund from a class action settlement

What is this about?

A proposed class action settlement has been reached concerning Van's International Foods ("Vans"). The lawsuit known as Miloro v. Van's International Foods, Inc., Case No. 15PH-CV00642, filed in Phelps County Circuit Court, Missouri, claims that certain Van's Frozen Breakfast Products sold after January 2009 were falsely advertised, with the labels of such products asserting that the products were "All Natural," "Totally Natural," and/or "Naturally Delicious" when in fact the products included a synthetic ingredient. Van's stands by its advertising and denies it did anything wrong. The Court in this matter has not determined who is right or wrong. Nonetheless, the parties have agreed to settle this matter, and you may be a class member.

Who is a class member?

You may be a class member if you purchased the Van's Frozen Breakfast Products covered by the settlement between January 1, 2009 and June 16, 2015. There are numerous Van's Frozen Breakfast Products covered by this settlement including various Van's frozen waffles, frozen pancakes, frozen french toast sticks, frozen waffle sticks, frozen english muffins and frozen muffin crowns which were labeled "Van's Natural Foods" and "Totally Natural," "Naturally Delicious," or "All Natural," so please visit www.milorosettlement.com for a complete list of the affected products.

What will I receive?

Van's has established a capped $9,000,000 settlement fund to pay all valid claims made. To receive a cash refund, you must file a claim form online or postmarked by December 16, 2015. The actual amount paid to settlement class members who do not have any proof of purchase and who submit a valid claim is estimated to be a minimum of $4.99 per household. Class members who do have proof of purchase and who submit valid claims could recover up to $18 per household. Since there are millions of potential class members, the actual benefit amount you receive may be reduced depending upon the total number of valid claims filed. For complete information about how to file a claim and what payments the settlement provides visit the website below.

What are my rights?

If you don't want to be bound by the decisions of the Court concerning this settlement, you must request to be excluded in a writing postmarked by August 31, 2015, or you won't be able to sue or continue to sue Van's about the legal claims in this case. If you exclude yourself, you can't get money from this settlement. You may object to this settlement by sending an objection postmarked by August 31, 2015. Detailed instructions for excluding yourself or objecting are found on the website identified below. If you do nothing you will not receive a payment and you will be bound by the decision of the court regarding these claims, including certain releases of Van's.

Before money is paid, the Court will hold a fairness hearing at 9:00 a.m. on September 17, 2015, in the Phelps County, Missouri Circuit Court, 200 N. Main Street, #102, Rolla, Missouri 65401 in the Hon. Judge John D. Beger's Courtroom to determine the fairness, adequacy, and reasonableness of the settlement, to consider whether to approve the settlement, and to consider a request by Class Counsel for payment of attorneys' fees and costs and class representative incentive awards. The motion for attorneys' fees and costs and plaintiff incentive awards will be posted on the website after they are filed. You may appear at the hearing, but you don't have to. If the Court does not approve the settlement, or if the settlement is overturned on appeal, no cash payments will be made.

This is only a summary. For complete details, including a list of affected products, a claim form, and detailed court documents and other information, call toll-free 1-888-980-9431, visit www.milorosettlement.com, or write to Van's Class Action Settlement Administrator c/o Heffler Claims Group, P.O. ## Introducing Love Your Skin Dermatologist, Dr. Mona Gohara

Dr. Mona Gohara

DID YOU KNOW?

Humid air doesn't equal hydrated skin. Even on muggy summer days, your face and body can be susceptible to unusual dryness. Each day, use a sensitive skin beauty bar, facial cleanser or body wash with moisturizing ingredients, to help keep skin hydrated. Use a light, fast-absorbing spray lotion after the shower, for added moisture.

According to Instagram, your dog Josie's been known to pay you a visit on the Scandal set.

On our first day back with the cast, she was really excited to see some of her favorite people, like Josh Malina (who plays U.S. D.A. David Rosen). He is Josie's favorite. I'm pretty sure he likes her more than he likes me, and I guarantee if anyone asked him, he would agree.

You're a part of Neutrogena's Choose Skin Health campaign. Why is sun care important to you? I grew up in a household where everybody swims, so SPF was important. When I started working with Neutrogena, I learned that one in five Americans will develop skin cancer. It's such a preventable cancer that it feels like this could be changed with awareness.

When it comes to your red carpet prep, are you insanely organized like Olivia? I wouldn't say I'm the boss lady in that way, but I do feel like it's an opportunity for me, my hairstylist Takisha Sturdivant-Drew, makeup artist Carola Gonzalez and stylist Erin Walsh to have a creative moment. What's the last thing you do before heading to an event? I say, "Do I have my keys, do I have my phone, do I have my lipstick?" The one thing you don't want to do is forget your lipstick, because you'll eat, and then you're like, "My look isn't complete because I didn't bring my lipstick," and you're stuck!

As D.C.'s top political fixer, Olivia Pope (pictured here) is always dressed to impress, but don't confuse her style with Washington's. "Her aesthetic is so different than mine," she says.

KERRY PLAYS IT'S HANDLED... OR IT'S NOT HANDLED

BREAKFAST IN THE MORNING

Handled. I usually do a smoothie. [When she isn't making Kimberly Snyder's Glowing Green Smoothie from scratch, she buys the bottles.]

WASHING YOUR FACE EACH NIGHT

Handled. If worst comes to worst, I use wipes. I hate to go to bed with any makeup on.

PLANNING YOUR OUTFITS

Handled. I don't usually panic about it.

STOCKED DIAPER BAG

WORKING OUT

Handled. I do a lot of Pilates.

WRITING INSTAGRAM CAPTIONS

YOUR FALL WARDROBE

TIFFANI THIESSEN 'I'm So Lucky'

"It's still surreal to think I'm a mother of two," says Thiessen (with husband Brady Smith, daughter Harper and son Holt).

Introducing
Holt
Fisher
Smith
BORN:
July 1, 2015

Tiffani Thiessen's daughter Harper long wanted a baby sibling. So consider this a belated birthday present! On July 1, just a few weeks after Harper turned 5, she finally got to meet her little brother Holt. "She lit up like a Christmas tree," Thiessen, 41, tells People. "All she wanted to do was hold and kiss him." But she'll have to take her turn as Thiessen and her husband, Brady Smith, 43, are equally smitten with the 4-week-old. "He has my eye shape and Brady's nose, but he is morphing daily and is starting to look a little more like Harper," says the host of the Cooking Channel's Dinner at Tiffani's. "It's so exciting, and he has been such a good baby. He's smiling now and recognizes me." Thiessen says everything has been easier the second time around. "I'm just more relaxed, and I think the baby is more relaxed because of it." Even picking out the baby's name came naturally. "It's a family name on Brady's side," she says. "We've had Holt in our back pocket since day one." —MIA McNIECE

THE ACTOR, 28, STARS AS JOHNNY STORM (THE HUMAN TORCH!) IN THE NEW MARVEL FILM FANTASTIC FOUR

Last time I was late

This morning. I wouldn't say it's an everyday thing, but it happens every now and then. I set an alarm and I wake up, but I think I give myself too much time. I need to cut it closer. Crunch time is better.

Last time I was frustrated

Probably the process of trying to buy a house. I'm thinking about trying to buy my first one, so I've kind of started looking. It's a process, but I'll know the one when I see it.

Last time I was starstruck

I met Jay Z and Beyoncé at the Met Gala. I was debating whether to go over to them, but I was there with [FF costar] Kate [Mara], and she was like, "Just go. You'll regret it if you don't." It was cool. He said he was a fan of mine too, which felt great.

Last thing I lost

I lost my driver's license about a month ago. I don't have a wallet, so I'm like free-balling with my ID and my credit card. I'll just reach in my pocket and it's not there. I've got another one now, but I still don't have a wallet. It's stupid, I know.

Last time I danced

With my mom at the Lupus L.A. Orange Ball. She likes a little two-step. She's a good dancer; she has a little bit more grace than I do. I'll dance with her anywhere.
